Graham Cameron is the Associate Director of the EBI. He is in charge of overseeing services activities as well as coordinating various EU grants. In the last 20 years he has built on the original EMBL Data Library established in Heidelberg and managed the transition to the EBI in the UK. Almost 200 of the EBI staff are involved in this work. Aside from the obvious and substantial task of maintaining the individual databases and services, the most significant research work is on a range of projects, of which this is one, aimed at improving information integration.
